

ABSTRACT

An orthodontic bracket has a clip which is curved substantially in U-shape as covering at least one part of an opposite side to a base in an archwire slot. Catching
5 end portions which are provided at an upper end part of the clip may be caught to enable to creep under a cover portion supported by the bracket main body. The clip is formed at the upper end part thereof with a concave portion as a recess portion which enables to catch a clip release
10 tool for releasing the clip.